Once a farmer lived in a village with his four sons. The sons always quarreled among themselves. So the family was unhappy and the work was not done well. One day the farmer called his sons together. He put some sticks on the ground in front of them. He picked up one of the sticks and broke it with one of his hands. Then he picked up five sticks and tied them together. He gave the bundle of the sticks to his strongest son and said, "Break them". The young man could not break the bundle of five sticks. Then the farmer said, "It is easy to break one stick but it is not easy to break five sticks, if they are together." The farmer then advised the sons, "Our family is like those sticks. By quarreling you will become weak, by staying together you will be strong."

Questions:

1. How many sons did the farmer have?
2. What did the sons always do?
3. What did the farmer do after calling his sons?
4. What did the farmer ask his strongest son to do?

Sportsmanship is a noble attitude of mind. It is a great principle which great men observe and everyone should always keep in mind. Sportsmanship does not mean taking part in games according to the set rules. Rather it means to observe all those rules in life which the player has been taught to observe while playing games. Games and sports are to mould the character of the players by the training they are given in the field. Sportsmanship implies fair dealing in games. If a player plays foul, the side to which he belongs is penalized. Exactly in the same manner, in the bigger game of life, one must be fair in one's dealing with others. Fairness, integrity, openness of heart and frankness are the qualities of a sportsman. Reason and not impulse is his true guide. He is generous in helping others and if ever by mistake he finds others, he hastens to make amends for the wrong done by him. With a smile on his face, he accepts his faults and short-comings. Sportsmanship is a noble attitude which one must cultivate as early as possible. It is a great virtue which enhances the personality of man many-fold.

Questions:

1. What, according to the writer, is the real meaning of sportsmanship?
 2. What do sports and games aim at?
 3. What lesson does sports give to an individual?
 4. How does sportsmanship reflect itself in the bigger game of life?
 5. Make a list of qualities that sports can develop in an individual.
 6. Use the following words in sentences of your own: Principle, Mould, Cultivate.
