Fame is food that dead men eat,
I have no stomach for such meat.
In little light and narrow room,
They eat it in the silent tomb,
With no kind voice of comrade near
To bid the feaster be of cheer.

But friendship is nobler thing,
Of friendship it is good to sing.
For truly, when a man shall end,
He lives in memory of his friends,
Who does his better part recall
And of his fault make funeral.

Q.3 Appreciate the following passage and give a suitable title to it:

The less you possess, the less you want, the better you are. And better for what? Not for enjoyment of this life, but for enjoyment of personal service to your fellow-beings; service to which you dedicate yourselves, body, soul and mind...even the body is not yours. It has been given to you as a temporary possession, and it can also be taken from you by Him who has given it to you.

Therefore, having the absolute conviction in me, such must be my constant desire that this body also may be surrendered at the will of God, and while it is at my disposal, must be used not for dissipation, not for self-indulgence, not for pleasure, but merely for service and service the whole of your waking hours. And if this is true with reference to the body, how much more with reference to clothing and other things that we use? Those who have followed out this vow of voluntary poverty to the fullest possible extent (to reach absolute perfection is an impossibility, but the fullest possible extent for a human being) testify that when you dispossess yourself of everything you have, you really possess all the treasures of the world. In other words, you really get all that is in reality necessary for you. If food is necessary, food will come to you. I want you to come with me a step further and believe with me that those who voluntarily give up everything on earth, including body, are never in want. Therefore, the only thing that can be possessed by all is non-possession, not to have anything whatsoever.
