LIFE

Is a flower of five petals Love's the first
Where a lusting bee settles quenching thirst.
faith is the second
a drooping treasure
when reckoned
in fastidious measure
Hope's a third
Brooding breast
where a blood spattered bird takes rest.
The fourth I cannot see only a limp hand
stretches endlessly
for the touch of land.
The fifth look wrapped
in that terrible book, terrible man, terribly trapped.

Unemployment is a social evil. When young men go about without jobs, they fall into evil practices. Frustrated, they become a source of many civic problems. When the students realize that their future is dark, they begin to behave in a violent manner. An idle brain is rightly called the workshop of devil. Hence, the need to keep the youth employed. Our government has started several schemes to help the unemployed. There are employment exchanges in major cities. But they are not very helpful. For one reason, there are hardly enough jobs. For another, it is not easy to find suitable men for the available jobs. The unemployment is so severe that thousands chase the dozens of jobs. Naturally many like to leave the country and go abroad in search of jobs. Thus there is a brain drain. Young Indians of fine talents go away to work and earn in other countries. The population is growing faster than jobs. Therefore the population has got to be checked. Also more and more jobs should be created. Then we must change the educational system, and make it vocational. Also the viewpoint that only the white collar jobs are jobs should be corrected. Unemployment has got to be checked before it is too late.
